Clarification for eligibility funding

As detailed in the Childcare Act 2006, childminders are not able to claim funding for their own children, grandchildren or for any member of their family through blood or marriage. This will be actively monitored by Hertfordshire County Council and if there is enough evidence to confirm that funding has been claimed contrary to these regulations, it will be refused and reclaimed if necessary. The Childcare Support entitlements stop at the beginning of the term your child starts in school reception class (or when they reach compulsory school age and are still attending an early years provision, i.e. the start of the school term following their 5th birthday).

Family information

Your child is entitled to 570 hours Childcare Support per year across the 38 weeks of school term time. This can be accessed through any approved childcare provider in Hertfordshire. The Childcare Support entitlement can be split between two providers, where both agree, and that the number of hours accessed does not exceed the total allowed in that funding period. Some children can access an additional 570 hours of Childcare Support; eligibility criteria apply. If you are eligible the total of 1140 hours may be split over a maximum of two sites per day. NB: All Childcare Support in a single day has to be offered in one continuous session, there cannot be a 'paid for' break between sessions in the same day.

Using your Childcare Support in the school holidays

Choosing to use your Childcare Support entitlement in the school holidays as well as during term time is referred to as the stretched offer. Not all providers offer this, but if they do and you feel it is a more suitable option for your circumstances then you need to consider the following points.

- Whilst you still get 570 hours per scheme in total across the year, the maximum number of weekly hours available to you is reduced as you are accessing the entitlement over more than the standard 38 weeks. Typically, this will be around 11 hours per week, but your provider will confirm the exact figures to you. For 30 hours over a full year this would be around 22 hours per week.
- A stretched offer model must be applied for a full year to ensure that you can access the full number of hours you are entitled to.
